

#5

Asian carp were first recorded in the Kansas River in the mid-late 1990s yet reproduction was not documented until 2010. The record spawn on 2010 provided an increase in abundance of easily accessible fish into high recreational use areas. This presentation will describe the expansion of Asian carp within the middle Mississippi River Basin, vectors for spread, and actions taken to prevent further range expansion.